STATE OF FLORIDA
MILITARY DEPARTMENT
OFFICE OF THE ADJUTANT GENERAL
ST. AUGUSTINE

December 31, 1936.

His Excellency, The Governor of Florida and Commander-in-Chief Florida National Guard and Florida Naval Militia, Tallahassee, Florida.

SIR:

Herewith is submitted the biennial report of The Adjutant General of Florida, pertaining to the administration of the Division of Military and Naval Affairs of the Executive Department for the calendar years 1935 and 1936, pursuant to the provisions of Chapter 2024 Compiled General Laws of Florida, 1927.

Applications for authority to form additional National Guard units continue to reach this office, however it is regretted that Federal allocations will not permit of any expansion at this time.

The State in accepting Federal aid for the Florida National Guard, under the provisions of the National Defense Act of 1920, as amended, obligates itself to accept certain National administration under the National Guard Bureau of the War Department. The State is restricted to such units as are authorized by the War Department, and failure to conform to this restriction would cause the discontinuance of Federal support to the Florida National Guard, which amounts to approximately $500,000.00 per year.

The State of Florida is authorized certain specified units and is limited in the maintenance of these units to a total maximum strength of 187 officers, 3 warrant officers, and 2,380 enlisted men. This allocation is based on the limitation of funds appropriated by Congress for the support of the National Guard, and prorated on a basis of State representation in Congress.

Similarly, Federal laws authorize the militiaizing of U. S. Naval Reserve units which have been classified as Fleet organizations. Only two such units have been authorized by the Navy Department, and while it is believed that the State's long coast line and maritime activities justify an increased allocation of these units, Naval authorities do not look with favor on any expansion in Florida.

The Florida National Guard

The Florida National Guard occupies an enviable position in its standing in the National Guard of the United States and that steady improvement which has so richly rewarded the efforts of its personnel for years has never been more potent than during the period covered by this report. Each year training has materially improved in a logical and progressive manner. The State may be assured that a dependable and efficient armed force stands ready to support civil authority in maintaining law and in the preservation of public peace, furnishing at the same time a necessary component of National security.

Three factors during the past year have contributed greatly to improvements in the Florida National Guard. First, Congressional appropriations for the employment of armory caretakers; secondly, the replacement of certain inadequate armory facilities by the construction of new and modern armories through the Works Progress Administration; and third, the diligent study of prescribed military subjects by all officers.

On December 31, 1936, the strength of the Florida National Guard was:

Organizational Changes 1935-1936

Battery "D", 265th Coast Artillery, stationed in Miami, was disbanded on November 15, 1935, and reallocated to the City of Pensacola where it was reorganized and mustered into service on March 30, 1936.

On May 19, 1936, the Quartermaster Section of Headquarters 31st Division, was redesignated as Headquarters 106th Quartermaster Regiment. Headquarters 2nd Battalion, 106th Quartermaster Regiment, was allotted to the State and the 124th Motor Transport Company (QMC) redesignated as Company "C", 106th Quartermaster Regiment.

The 118th Ambulance Company (motor), 106th Medical Regiment, was allotted to Florida by the War Department and organized at St. Petersburg on April 15, 1936. On December 31, 1936, this unit was transferred to Fort Myers and redesignated as Company "F", 106th Medical Regiment.

Headquarters Battery, 116th Field Artillery, at Fort Myers, was transferred to St. Petersburg on December 31, 1936.

Training

Training standards for the National Guard are prescribed by the War Department and are designed to maintain the troops in a reasonable state of readiness for field service to meet any defensive mission which might arise.

Training is kept up throughout the year in the form of drills, schools and field camps. Weekly drills of units are held in armories during the armory training period and are supplemented by schools for officers, schools for non-commissioned officers, and schools for specialists. Training in armories is largely theoretical, and the military principles thus learned are applied at the annual field camps of 15 days' duration.

The requirement imposed upon the officers, non-commissioned officers and specialists, of a higher order of professional knowledge and skill, is logically being increased from year to year. It is an optimistic thought that so many men can be found who are willing to give freely of their time in perfecting their knowledge of military science for a possible emergency. Doubtless, the average citizen thinks of military instruction as being little more than a series of marches and drills and lacks the understanding of the obligation assumed by citizens who attempt to master at least the fundamentals of a profession that is fully as exacting in its requirements as any of the major professions.

During the biennial period covered by this report Field Training Camps were attended by all units under the supervision of War Department Instructors as follows:

Organization	Camp	Percentage of Attendance
For 1935:
116th Field Artillery	Camp Jackson (S. C.)	99.5%
124th Infantry	Camp Foster (Fla.)	93.4%
265th Coast Artillery	Key West Barracks (Fla.)	99.6%
106th Engineers	Camp Foster (Fla.)	98.5%
Battery "C", 265th C. A.	Fort Barrancas (Fla.)	100.0%
124th Motor Transport Co.	Camp Foster (Fla.)	96.0%
Hq. Btry. 56th F. A. Brig.	Camp Beauregard (La.)	100.0%
Average attendance of total authorized strength		98.33%
For 1936:
116th Field Artillery	Camp Jackson (S. C.)	100.0%
124th Infantry	Camp Foster (Fla.)	91.0%
265th Coast Artillery	Key West Barracks (Fla.)	98.0%
Battery "C", 265th C. A.	Fort Barrancas (Fla.)	100.0%
106th Engineers	Fort McClellan (Ala.)	96.1%
Co. "C", 106th QM. Regt.	Fort McClellan (Ala.)	94.3%
Hq. Btry. 56th F. A. Brig.	Camp Jackson (S. C.)	100.0%
Average attendance of total authorized strength		97.1%

As a result of the acquisition from the government of a large number of fast trucks, the military forces of this State have had the opportunity during the past two years of valuable training in truck movements. Sufficient trucks have not been furnished to completely motorize our forces, but there is transportation enough, by staggering camp periods, to move 2,000 troops, or approximately 80% of the State's total strength.

Progress being made in the individual military education of officers, non-commissioned officers, and specially selected privates is worthy of special mention. All officers are required to take a correspondence extension course and to attend certain instruction assemblies. Officers are required to continue their military studies until they have qualified themselves for promotion to the next higher grade. Non-commissioned officers and specially selected privates who complete these courses successfully are given commissions in the National Guard of the United States, thus constituting a pool of trained officers for war-time expansion.

In addition to the school system conducted within the State, selected officers are given the opportunity to attend, from time to time, the military schools conducted by the government for the education of officers of the Regular Army. There is included with this report a list of officers and non-commissioned officers attending such schools in the past.

Inspections

Annual Armory Inspections:

All phases of training of the National Guard are conducted under the supervision of officers of like branches of the Regular Army, these officers being especially selected by the War Department for their suitability for duty with the National Guard.

During the armory training period these officers make frequent visits of instruction to the units of the Guard at their home stations, observe their training and make constructive criticisms. Toward the close of the armory training period official "Annual Armory Inspections" are made by these Regular Army Instructors, the inspections being so scheduled that each officer inspects units not normally under his supervision.

Unorganized Militia

The estimated strength of the Reserve Militia of the State as described in Section 2015, Compiled General Laws of Florida, 1927, and based on the 1935 census, is:

White	205,031
Negro	83,376
Total	288,407

Instructors

This report would not be complete without commenting upon the most excellent and generous service of the Regular Army Instructors and Sergeant-Instructors who have been on duty with the Florida National Guard, by detail of the War Department, during the period of this report.

They have been diligent beyond the call of their assigned duties and well beyond what might normally be expected. Their zeal and interest has been one of the strongest factors in making our Guard a strong and efficient force.

The officers and non-commissioned officers of the Regular Army on duty with the Florida National Guard are:

Instructors

Alfred L. P. Sands	Colonel, F. A.	Tampa, Artillery Field
Harry B. Crea	Lt. Col., Infantry	St. Augustine, State Arsenal

Edward J. Morris	Captain, Q. M. C.	Montgomery, Ala., State Capitol

Sergeant Instructors

Thurman A. Hancock	Tech. Sgt. DEML (NG)	Jacksonville, 2826 Post St.
Gilbert P. Kearns	Staff Sgt., DEML (NG)	Lakeland, 1121 So. Hartsell Ave.
John Gladis	Staff Sgt., DEML (NG)	Miami, Dade County Armory
Maxwell O. Thrower	Sergeant, DEML (NG)	St. Augustine, State Arsenal
Cyrus G. Barter	Sergeant, DEML (NG)	Tampa, 813 Grove Park Ave.
Henry Bergfeld	Sergeant, DEML (NG)	Jacksonville, Duval County Armory

State Camp Grounds

Considerable improvement has been made during the period covered by this report to the camp facilities at Camp J. Clifford R. Foster near Jacksonville. This camp site is now recognized as one of the finest in the South and attracts troops from other nearby states for summer training activities.

With the aid of the FERA, the WPA, and other Federal agencies the following reforestation, beautification and improvement program has been accomplished:

Planted, 90,000 pine trees; 450 palms; 100 camphor trees; 50 oak trees, and 800 oleander plants.

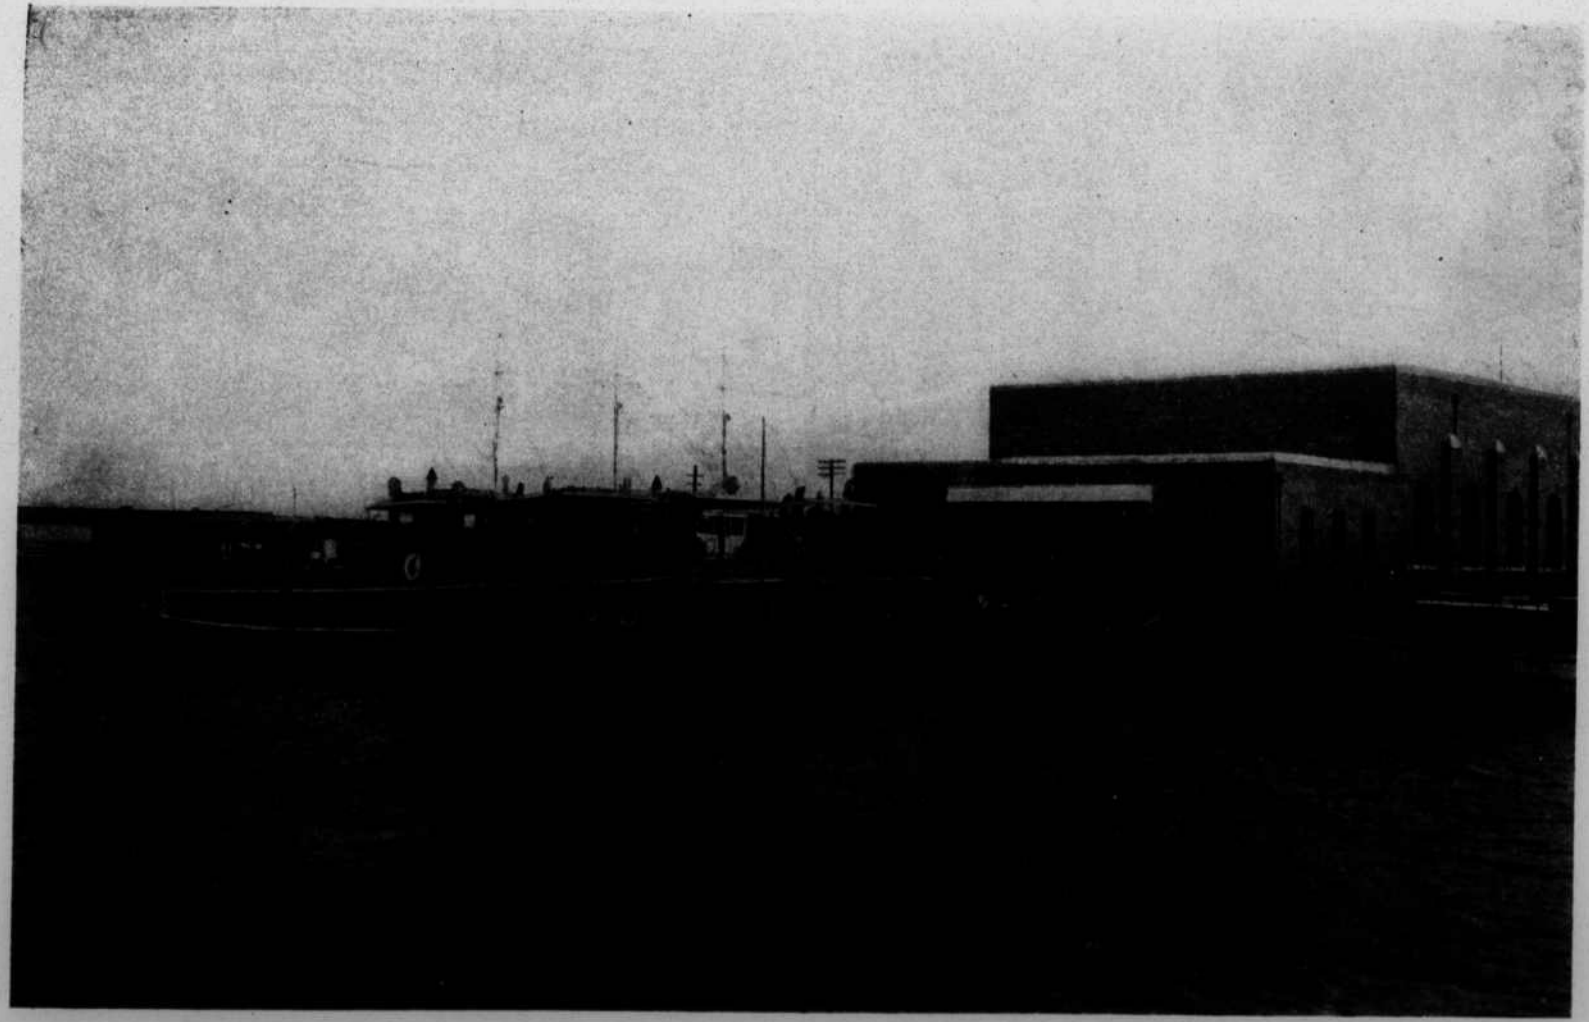
Constructed, 16 new kitchens and mess halls; one permanent headquarter's building; one mile of hard-surface road, and three miles of dirt road.

Dredged low-lying marshes.

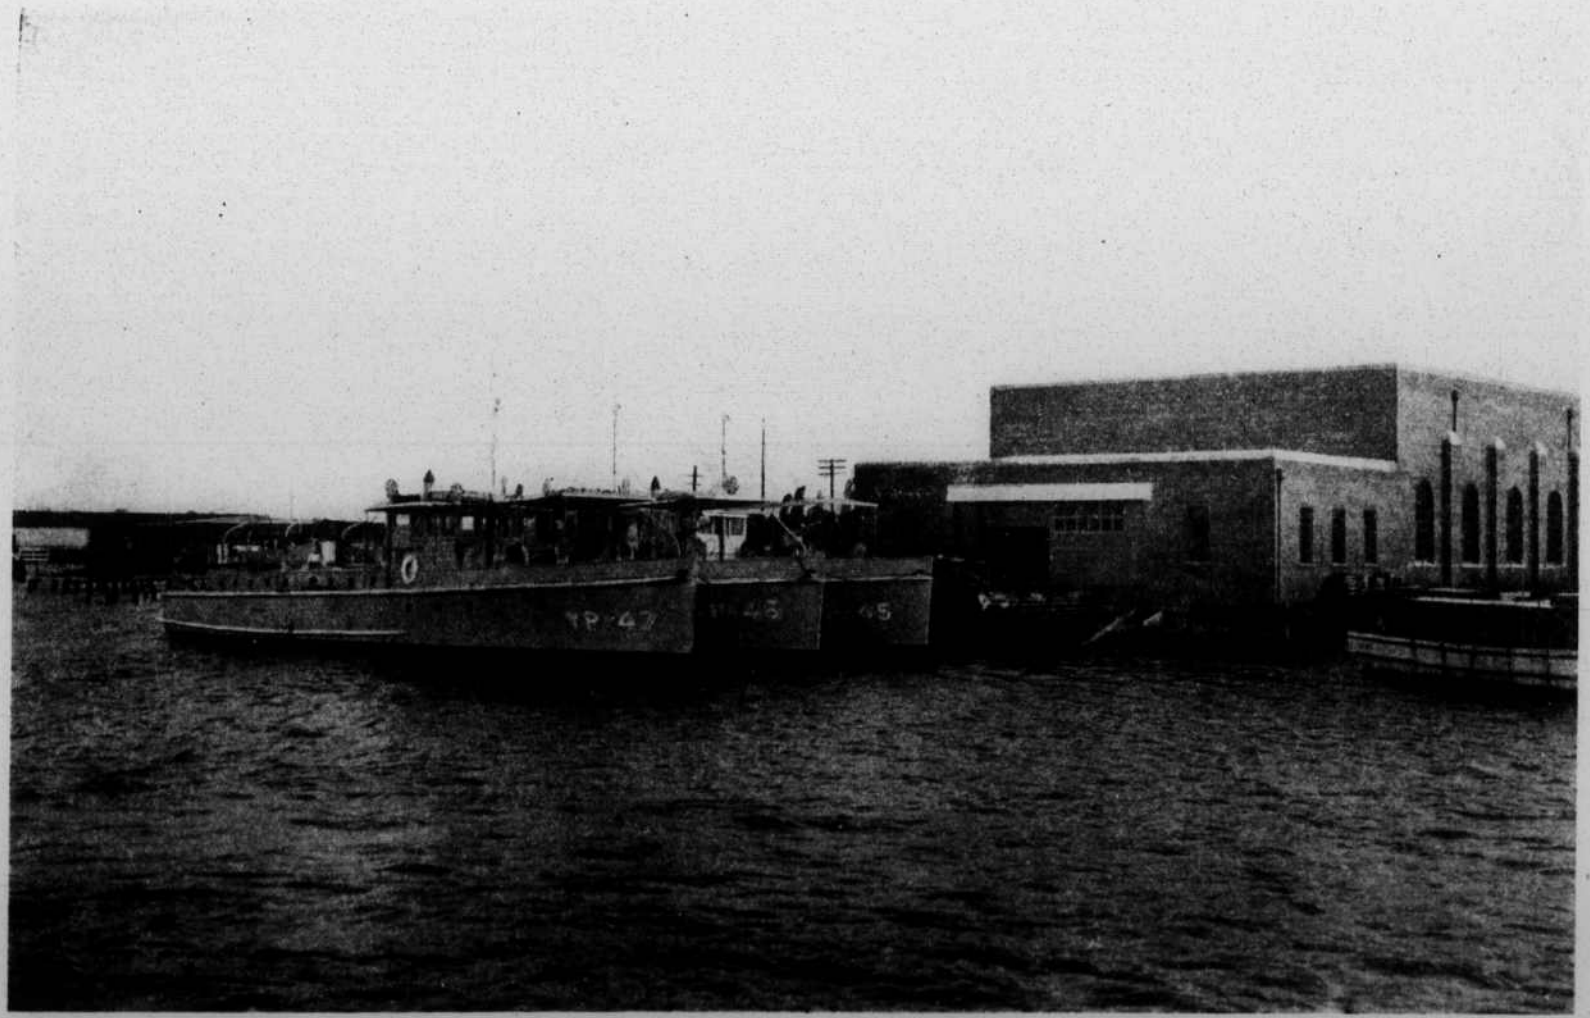
Repaired 34 buildings.

Chief National Guard Bureau

No higher recognition could have been afforded the Florida National Guard, than the selection of its senior officer, Major General Albert H. Blanding, by the President of the United States, for appointment to the office of Chief of the National Guard Bureau. This recognition was based solely on the efficient military record of this outstanding Floridian whose appointment became effective January 30, 1936.



YARD PATROL BOATS AND ARMORY OF FLEET DIVISION TWO, FLORIDA NAVAL MILITIA, JACKSONVILLE, FLA.



YARD PATROL BOATS AND ARMORY OF FLEET DIVISION TWO, FLORIDA NAVAL MILITIA, JACKSONVILLE, FLA.

Naval Militia

The Florida Naval Militia consists of only those officers and enlisted men of the United States Naval Reserve who occupy an organizational status with Fleet Divisions.

Only two such units have been allocated to the State of Florida: Fleet Division One at Miami and Fleet Division Two at Jacksonville, each with a personnel of 7 officers and 66 enlisted men.

With the aid of the Works Progress Administration labor and material have been obtained for the satisfactory rehabilitation of six decommissioned U. S. Coast Guard patrol boats. These boats have been redesignated as Yard Patrol boats and have been assigned new identification numbers by the Navy Department with bases:

Jacksonville—Y.P. Nos. 45, 46, and 47.

Miami—Y.P. Nos. 48, 49, and 50.

Plans for the aid of civil authority contemplate the use of the highly trained Naval Militia for either combat duty where armed force is indicated or for relief duty in emergencies along the coast line and waterways of the State.

Conclusion

Credit for that healthy growth and development of the Florida National Guard which is a matter of official record, is due to the willing and intelligent cooperation of the officers and enlisted men, who so patriotically assume military service as an obligation of citizenship.

Respectfully submitted,

Vivian Collins,
Brigadier General, A.G.D., F.N.G.,
The Adjutant General,
Florida.
